

Preschool Celebrates Haitian Heritage

Several weeks into the new school year the preschool children celebrated Haitian Heritage Day. They dressed in traditional outfits and sang songs their grandparents would have sung. Best of all, the cooks prepared a number of homemade dishes that go back for generations. There was Aka San, a country pudding made with sugar, milk and corn meal. The children also ate homemade peanut butter and stewed greens and vegetables, a Haitian favorite.

We encourage our schools to promote patriotism and love of country. We want the children and young people to love Haiti because they are the ones God will use to change Haiti for the better. At Mission To Haiti we are committed to equipping Haitians to change Haiti for Christ. Salvation, Christian education, nutrition and safety are the means God is using to lift them up.

When you support these children and this ministry you are a part of the solution.

Pierreline Needs A New Home

Pierreline stands with her mom and little sister in front of their flooded house

We received a call from Haiti recently. Junior was urged to visit the home of one of our school children. When Junior arrived, he saw that the house was completely flooded. Pierreline attends the Cazeau school. She lives in a makeshift house pieced together with discarded metal and cardboard. Earlier this year Mission To Haiti helped Pierreline go to the hospital because she got sick from her poor living conditions. Now those conditions are getting worse.

One of their neighbors heard about their dilemma. He donated a small piece of land to Pierreline's family so they could build a two-room home. Praise the Lord! Now, they need help to build a new home.

Our engineer can build a new home for them for $15,000. With your help, Pierre-line and her family can have a safe place to live. Please consider how you can help.

Pierreline needs a sponsor. She will be a wonderful girl to give your love and support.

Pierreline stands in ankle deep water in her house. Regardless of her situation, she always has a smile and hope for the future.

The Effects Of Melissa In Haiti

Hurricane Melissa did not hit Haiti, but its effects are being felt days after the storm. When the storm passed, Junior and our sponsoring staff began calling all the churches and schools. The reports came back that everyone was safe and unharmed. What they did not report were the lingering effects the storm created. Some roads and bridges are cut off, and the cost of food has definitely gone up.

We have already begun to increase the money for the school meals. Feeding the children at school is a great way to address the current situation. A special offering for school meals will bring an immediate relief. Thank you for helping.
